

Intern with the East Timor and Indonesia Action Network!

---

The East Timor & Indonesia Action Network (ETAN) is seeking interns.

Help our grassroots organizing for human rights and justice!

What is ETAN?

ETAN is a grassroots human rights organization working in solidarity with the people of East Timor and Indonesia. ETAN advocates justice for past rights violations, genuine self-determination for East Timor, and democratic reconstruction of one of the world's newest nations. ETAN supports human rights and democracy in Indonesia. Current projects include campaigning for justice for past human rights crimes and working to oppose military assistance to Indonesia.

What do ETAN interns do?

ETAN interns gain experience, skills and knowledge in the areas of policy and political advocacy, international politics, writing, editing, and organizing.

Intern responsibilities include research, writing and editing; maintaining and building relations with organizations and activists; administrative tasks; and monitoring and analyzing news and developments in Indonesia and East Timor. Interns will also participate in educating Congress and other decision-makers, fundraising, event organizing, and other necessary tasks.

ETAN interns participate in the movement for justice in solidarity with the people of East Timor – a country whose people have been deeply wrong by the international community.

This year, interns will work in Brooklyn, although it may be possible to work elsewhere.

Compensation

While ETAN can not pay interns, we can work with your school program for credit. If you need to relocate, we may be able to help with housing and may be able to provide partial support for internship-related expenses.
